connect to the past | restore

preserve | revive for the future

Domenico Masciantonio had little work and worried about his future in the foothills of Italy near Chieti. In the early 1900's he headed for the new world. He settled in Cubbage Hill where he and his wife Amelia raised five children and Domenico practiced his trade as a stone mason.

During the Great Depression, Domenico worked on numerous stone projects throughout Carnegie including the Carnegie Park Stone Shelter. Each is a work of art and a testament to their unyielding sturdiness against the test of time.

Today, the stone shelter stands as a testament to our immigrant history both past and present. The exact date of construction is approximated to be around 1938. The shelter has been weathered over many decades and needs a full restoration with a few upgrades. Domenico's family now in its sixth generation has partnered with the Borough of Carnegie to return the facility to its original and improved version.

STONE SHELTER
Available March 1 to September 30.

The stone shelter is equipped with a sink and a fireplace. During the month of October, it is used for the Trail of Terror.

Upcoming renovations will include repairs, countertop, refrigerator, cabinets, and overall restoration.
